✻A ROUND OF TALK.✻

Mirandy and the Muck-Rake

I've read the magazines until Mirandy says I'm daft.
O'er legislative treason, over bribery and graft.
I much distrust the Senate, while the lower house it seems.
T'me's made up of robbers each a workin' different schemes.
I sit an' brood about the way the public's bein' "done."
The growth of trusts, in fact the way that ev'rything is run.
While unperturbed Mirandy sits an' says: "We're safe from harm.
Whoever runs the gouvernment, so so long's you run the farm!"

If I address remarks to her, perchance, on "civic needs,"
"The greatest need I know," she'll say, "is mowing down the weeds!"
And should I speak of watered stocks, the "system's" sway decry
She's certain to remind me that the big stock- trough is dry!
And yet, though deaf to tales of how corrupt the nation's grown,
She scorns the trite, ecomplacent creed: "Leave well enough alone."
For she insists, 'tis insects, weeds I'd best view with alarm,
"Alarmful views should be," she says, "restricted to one's farm!"

I've David Graham Phillips read, o'er "Frenzied Finance" pored,
Along with Ida Tarbell walled, with Norman Hapgood roared;
I've read their magazine accounts; their books are on my shelf;—
Besides indorsing all their plaints I've drafted some myself!
But pshaw, Mirandy won't enthuse; she's sure to laugh an' say:
"Before you prate of cleanliness throw that ol' pipe away!
Quit swearin' when the calves get out! Quit always feelin' blue!—
If you'll reform yourself a mite I reckon that'll do!"—American Agriculturist.

MISTAKES—From all accounts a large number of mistakes were made in voting at the local option election last Saturday. The ballot, while a small affair and its meaniug tolerably clear to any one who will study it for a moment, was likely to cause one to become confused who did not give it a little thought. The mistakes were made for the most part by those who were certain they understood the question and would not seek any instructions on the subject. One strong advocate of local option is said to have boasted that he stamped his ballot "no" and was glad of the privilege and would always be against the sale of whiskey. He was considerably chagrined when he was told that the vote no meant a vote in favor of the sale of liquor. Another man who is employed away from home made a special point to be here on election day in order to vote "wet" stamped "yes," which was counted of course on the local option side. Numerous other mistakes were discovered after the count. In precinct Number 9 at Springfield there was a ballot carefully stamped in both squares. "That ballot," said one of the election officers, "belongs to ——. He is carrying the thing through. He talked on both sides and no doubt promised both sides his vote and he's simply voting both ways."

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT—It does not seem to be generally known, but there is to be a constitutional amendment question of considerable importance submitted to the voters at the next November election. The proposed amendment relates to suffrage elections and is as follows: "That, upon the concurrence of three-fifths of all the members elected to each House, the yeas and nays being taken thereon and entered in full in their respective journals, section one hundred and forty-five of the Constitution of Kentucky be, and it is, amended by adding a fourth paragraph to said section, containing the following words to wit: Persons who have not, at least sixty days before the election at which they offer to vote, paid in full all State, county, municipal, district and school taxes due by them for the year previous to the one in which they offer to vote." This proposition and the one containing an educational qualification for voters have caused a vigorous opposition wherever they have been made. They are regarded by many as a direct blow at the poor class of people. The claim is made that it is unfair to deprive a man of his right of suffrage because it is his misfortune to be poor. We dont believe that the time has yet come when any such radical measure will carry.

NEARLY A YEAR YET—The question is being asked since the election has carried in favor of local option, as to when the law will become effective. The law would be in effect at once as far as the granting of any more saloon license is concerned, but to those saloon keepers who have paid for licenses to run a year permission will have to be granted for them to continue in business for a year yet. Some of the saloons have paid up for various periods of less than a year and they will of course drop out of business as their licenses expire. So it will be a year yet before local option can be put into practical effect in this county.

There is nothing so pleasant as that bright, cheerful, at-peace-with-the-world feeling when you sit down to your breakfast. There is nothing so conducive to good work and good results. The healthy man with a healthy mind and body is a better fellow, better workman, a better citizen than the man or woman who is handicapped by some disability, however slight. A slight disorder of the stomach will derange your body, your thoughts and your disposition. Get away from the morbidness and the blues. Keep your stomach in tune and both your brain and body will respond. Little indiscretions of overeating can be easily corrected and you will be surprised to see how much better man you are. Dog Works in Tobacco.

James T. Watts, a Boyle county farmer, has a dog that is a past master worker in tobacco. When his master and the other workmen enter the field to worm the tobacco the dog is first to take his place. He goes down his row and beats all of the rest across the field, and there is not a single worm to be found on the plants that he has gone over. as he hunts around among the different leaves, finds every one and kills it. The dog has been a faithful worker for the last four seasons in the crop. Last year he entered the field a little too early, while the paris green was still on the tobacco, and he became poisoned, but he was carefully treated and restored to health.—Georgetown Times.

Two Decisions.

Two decisions, just rendered by the county judges of Scott and Montgomery respectively, have proved hard blows to the temperance forces of the state that are working so assiduously for the establishing of local option in the communities affected. In the County Court of Montgomery Judge A. A. Hazelrigg passed upon two petitions asking for a local option election one by whiskey men asking a ward vote and one by temperance people asking for a vote with the entire city as a unit. Judge Hazlerigg rendered an unusual decision, calling two elections for Wednesday, September 19, under both petitions. de held the Cammack, or County Unit Law unconstitutional and said that no election could be held in the city except by precincts. The decision was not unexpected to the temperance people, as far as granting of both elections was concerned, but was a surprise as to the holding that the Cammack law was unconstitutional. The temperance advocates, however are not discouraged are will fight to the bitter end. The decision of Judge Hazlerigg is the first rendered in the State on the question and will be taken to the Court of Appeals.—Harrodsburg Herald.

Awful Suicide.

Brooding over her recent trouble caused by the alleged assault made upon her by Abe Like, and becoming partially demented, Mrs. Steve Chambers yesterday evening committed suicide at her home near Kirkwood by taking a large quantity of Paris green, following an attempt first made upon her life by shooting herself.

Mrs. Chambers was alone at her home yesterday morning between 6 and 7 o'clock, her two children having gone to the fair at Lawrenceburg and her husband being out, and placing a pistol against her throat fired, but the ball missed. Mr. Chambers heard the report of the pistol and rushed into the house and prevented his wife from firing the second shot. In a few moments she left the room and went out to chicken-house and threw a handful of the Paris green into her mouth. In a short time she became violently ill. Mr. Chambers removed her to the home of Mr. W H. Goodlett where she died between 6 and 7 o'clock in the evening, never having regained consciousness, and before the arrival of a physician.

Coroner Gibbs went down this morning to hold an inquest over the remains. —Harrodsburg Democrat.

PUBLIC SALE

Of Valuable Farming and Timbered Land

As attorney in fact for the heirs at law of Isaiah Prather, deceased, I will on Saturday, September 1, 1906, beginning at 10:30 a m, offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder at the late residence of said Isaiah Prather three and one-half miles Northeast of Willisburg, Ky., about 800 acres of land.

This land is excellent grass, tobacco and corn land, is well fenced and is in good condition. It has as fine timber as can be found in the State, consisting of ash, oak, poplar and beech. The tract lies near Chaplin river in the northern part of Washington county, Ky., and possesses an abundant supply of never failing water. It is situated 15 miles from Springfield and 10 miles from Bloomfield with good turnpikes to both points where railroad shipping facilities exist. This land has been surveyed and plotted and will be offered in separate tracts of from 40 to 150 acres and then will be offered as a whole and will be sold according to the plan producing the most money.

TERMS OF SALE.

The terms of the sale will be one third cash, the remainder in three annual instalments to become due and payable in one, two and three years from the first day of January 1907.

T. J. PRATHER,
Attorney in fact of all the heirs at law of Isaiah Prather.

A SWEEPING VICTORY

For Local Option Forces Throughout the County --A Big Majority.

That the majority of the people of Washington county are against the sale, barter or loan of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors in the county was clearly demonstrated at the election held last Saturday. All but four voting precincts out of the twelve went "dry" by decided majorities. The three Springfield precincts voted "wet" by a combined majority of 187 and Fredericksburg voted for the sale of liquor by a majority of 95.

Reports from everywhere indicate that it was one of the most quiet and orderly elections ever held in the county. There seemed to be an absence of any attempt at bribing or any other violations of law. There was a fairly large vote polled although not as large as might have been expected considering the great interest that had been stirred up over the question by temperance speakers during the past few weeks.

Below we give the official vote for the county by precincts.

Buy Hair at Auction?

At any rate, you seem to be getting rid of it on auction-sale principles: "going, going, g-o-n-e!" Stop the auction with Ayer's Hair Vigor. It certainly checks falling hair; no mistake about this. It acts as a regular medicine; makes the scalp healthy. Then you must have healthy hair, for it's nature's way.

Cured Hay Fever and Summer Cold

A. J. Nusbaum, Batesville Indiana, writes: "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the simptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed to only aggravate my case. Fortunately I insisted upon having Fowler's Honey and Tar and it quickly cured me. My wife has since used Fowler's Honey and Tar with the same success." Sold at Red Cross Drug Store.

Latest Sensation.

A new sensation has sprung up in the last few days at the Kentucky Breeders Association track in two year old bay colt by Onward-Silver (2.05½) in the stable of Sam Wise, says a special dispatch to the Cincinnati Enquirer Sunday from Lexington. As good a judge as Henry Horne, trotting trainor of the Orchard Park Farm stable, says he would rather have this colt for a future racing prospect as a four or five year old than any two year old he has seen this season. A few days ago Wise sent the youngster a mile and repeat in 2:30, 2:27½, letting him down in the final half of both heats in 1:11. Several two year olds have far excelled this the poesent season, but none have duplicated the performance of a mile and repeat in 2:30 or better with as much ease and grace as did this son of the Transylvania winner of 1901. He skinned the rail like an old campaigner, never made a slip or a bobble and did both his miles without drawing a long breath. Right now he can go a mile in 2:20, and if his improvement in the next six weeks is as startling as it has been in the last two months, he will reach Kentucky Futurity Day one of the greatest stallion colts ever stripped for that important event. He is owned by Frank L. Dant, a prominent citizen of Lebanon, Ky., and is out of Bessie D., by Norvardine (2.18).—Enterprise

The Horse Show.

The Kentucky Horse Show Society will hold its first annual exhibition in the Armory, at sixth and Walnut streets at Louisville, the first week in October, the first to sixth inclusive.

The management of the Horse Show has been able to secure the Armory for four years through an arrangement with the Fiscal court of Jefferson county, whereby the Kentucky Horse Show Society is to pay to Colonel W. B. Haldeman, commanding the First Regiment, the sum of $5,000 to be used in furnishing the Armory, which was turned over to the Regiment in quite an incomplete condition, being deficient in equipmen and the money thus received through these public spirited citizens will be used in beautifuing the place and making it comfortable.

The personnel of the Kentucky Horse Show Society is practically the same as that of the old Louisville Horse Show Association and the exhibition to be conducted under its management will be of the same high standard, with some added features. Col Hogan was formerly President, Mr. Saunders P. Jones was Vice President and Mr. Bethel B Veech Secretary and Treasurer.

The Board of Directors and Executive Committee are made up of the gentlemen who have, ever since its conception in Louisville, taken an active part in Horse Show affairs and is composed of some of the leading men in the city.

The Armory is being especially prepared for the holding of the Horse Show. Seats and boxes will be placed in position, an additional floor will be laid on which to build the ring; stalls and carriage sheds will be provided for any number of horses and vehicles that may have to be taken care of.

The ring will be constructed along the same lines as that once formerly used in the old Horse Show building, but will be one hundred feet wide and 200 feet long and will be banked at the ends so as to permit greater speed in making the turns.

The management struck the keynote when it fixed the price of admission from 50 cents to $1.00; the first row of seats will be $1.00; the second row 75 cents and the remaining four rows, which being just two rows from the front, are reserved, at the low price of 50 cents.

The railroads have made a special rate for several days prior and succeeding the Horse Show and every Kentuckian should take advantage of this opportunity to witness this great exhibition which is a great credit to the Commonwealth.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

County Magistrates.....$ 2.50
District Offices..... 10.00

THURSDAY, AUG. 30, 1906

For Congress

We are authorized to announce

M. L. HEAVRIN,

of Ohio county, as a candidate for Congress from the Fourth Congressional district on the Republican ticket. Election November 6, 1906.

We are authorized to announce

as a candidate for the office of Clerk of the Washington Circuit Court. Subject to the action of the Democratic party.

The public will have to wait awhile before being treated to a political discussion oetween the two candidates for U. S. Senator. At a conference in Lexington Senator McCreary and Gov. Beckham agreed on the inadvisability of perfecting plans, at the present time, for their joint debates as candidates for the United States Senate. The two candidates chatted pleasantly for two hours and decided to wait until after the Bryan reception in Louisville before meeting again to arrange for the debates. The question of the effect of the debates on the chances of the various congressional candidates will be submitted to them for discussion.

The saloon keepers are still fighting the Sunday closing bill in Louisville. They have announced that they will open on next Sunday for the purpose of selling non-intoxicating drinks and cigars. The saloon men claim that so long as drugstores are allowed to keep open and to sell cigars and soft drinks they should be allowed the same privilege. The movement may result in the closing of the drug stores as well as the saloons.

The local option forces are hard at work in Nelson county and are confident of carrying the election on next Saturday. The wave of reform is also said to be extending to our fourth class neighbor Lebanon and the prediction is freely made that the saloons will be voted out of that town in less than six months.

General Napoleon B. Hays continues to make the fur fly in his campaign. In a speech at Hopkinsville he referred to the administration as "Capt Kidd and his band of pirates at Frankfort" and charged the Board of Control with misconduct in the management of the Western Kentucky Insane Asylum.

New York is today doing the honors to William Jennings Bryan on his return from his European trip. The Bryan boom for President may be considered fairly launched.

Messrs A. T. Virgin and Thurman Chesser attended the Lawrenceburg fair last week and from there they went to Frankfort to spend a few days,

Miss Davis is the attractive guest of Miss Lydia Huston.

Mr. M. L. Troutman was called to Bellmont by the illness of his mother,

We are very sorry to hear that Miss Hallie Huston has typhoid fever.

Mr. Thomas Virgin, wife and daughter, Miss Lydia, Mesdames Bettie Troutman, Kate Shewmaker, Ora Crume and two sons and Mr. Ham Shehan spent Sunday with Mr. Edward Goatley and wife.

Some of the Valley Hill young farmers are working our pike from that town to Midway, and "I" will say that they are making a great improvement, but when one of the young men sees a young lady coming he tries to hide, but I dont think he always succeeds. How about it "One?"

Best wishes to the newsy News Leader,

"Lonesome Girl,"

In Self Defense

Major Hamm, editor and manager of the Constitutionalist, Eminence, Ky., when he was fiercely attacked, four years ago, by Piles, bought a box of Bucklan's Arnica Salve, of which he says he says: "It cured me in ten days and no trouble since." Quickest healer of Burns, Sores, Cut and Wounds. 25c at C. J. Haydon's drug store.

Pulliam

Hugh Keeling bought a seven year old mare for $10.

Several from this place attendad the fair at Lawrenceburg last week.

We are having lots of rain just now. Should the rain continue through next month the tobacco will almost ruin,

Mr. J. A. Johnson visited relatives at VanBuren last week.

Mr. J. B. Jenkins sold his farm of 68 acres to Mr. John Harlow for $1500.

The Baptist association will be held at Rockbridge church on the 4th and 5th, the first Tuesday and Wednesday in September.

Well the much talked election is over and we are glad we can say that the north end of old Washington county rolled a sweeping victory for local option. Whiskey is the greatest evil of the day, and now that we have our foot on the stuff lets keep it there forever.

A Mystery Solved

"How to keep off periodic attacks of biliousness and habitual constipation was a mystery that Dr. King's New Life Pills solved for me," writes John N. Pleasant, of Magnolia, Ind. The only pills that are guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction to everybody or money refunded. Only 25c at C. J. Haydon's drug store.

Valley Hill.

Hot! Every body knows that it's the hottest weath r yet.

"See in snakes" all have said as bad as I thought I saw them Saturday. Vipers of the worst variety.

The crab grass in this section is fine. Tobacco cutting going on at a fast rate, and tobacco worms of the nuest type, large fat and juicy.

The fruit in this section is of a very inferior quality owing to the fact that the insects are doing deadly work, especially on the apple and peach orchards.

It's wet in this section regardless of the "Dry Landslide." Rain has and continues doing much damage to crops.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kays, of Polin, visited relatives in this section Sunday.

Harry Derringer and wife visited relatives near Mt. Zion Sunday.

Mr. Jim Kays and wife, of Lawrenceburg, spent Sunday with Burgess Pinkston and family

Mr. John Virgin, of near Maud, accompanied by Mrs. Jennie Barlow, visited relatives in this section last week

Mr. and Mrs. Berry Pinkston of Polin, visited their son at this place last week, who is improving after a severe attack of typhoid fever.

Miss Sarah Tucker, of Louisville, visited her many relatives around here last week.

Little Miss Nellie Foster, of Louisville is a guest of her grandparents here.

Several from this place attended the lecture at New Hope Friday night. It surely did good.

A. B. Pinkston and wife were in Springfield Monday.

Several from this section are attending the meeting at New Hope this week, which will continue several days.

Eat, drink and be merry, ye whiskey men for you can't get it much longer, that is the bottle, its long enough.

THE SICK.—Edd Pinkston, who has been confined for several weeks with typhoid fever is convalescent. —Herbert Moran is also fast improving.—Mr. D C. Kelley is out again, yet unable to do any labor.—Miss Imogene Goatley is yet in a very serious condition with typhoid fever.—Mrs. D. C. Kelly is fast improving.—Frank Janes who has been very sick for several days of malaria is out again — And Harry Pinkston, has arrived at the "stand still" point after a year's struggle between malaria and the tobacco patch.

UNO.

Mt. Zion Echoes.

We are having rain in abundance, tobacco crops are being ruined, wheat and oats are rotting in the stack and weeds are growing rank.

Miss Sallie Mae Williams has returned from a visit to her uncle Jas. Marshall, of Bardstown.

Mesdames. Wm Eddleman, Herbert Eddleman and Ida Williams and daughters, little Misses Arta Mae and Thelma, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs Guy Dawson, of Bloomfield, last Thursday.

Mrs. Felix Crume, of Nelson county, spent Sunday at the Russell home.

Messrs. B. Hays, of Bloomfield, Fish, of Chaplin, and B. Hays dined with Mr. Jas. days last Sunday.

Miss Ollie Vanfleet, of Louisville, is visiting relatives here this week.

Miss Margie Bonta, returned home Sunday after a weeks visit to her sister, Mrs. S. H. Bishop, in Springfield.

Rev. W. S. Maxwell and family were entertained at the home of Mrs. Kate Williams Sunday. The second Sunday in September will be the last service for this conference year. Rev Maxwell has been faithful and wrought a good work. We hope he will return for the next year, which will be his fourth year at this place.

Mrs. Ida Scott, of Early Times, visited relatives here last week.

Mr. John Weakley and family, of Nelson county, attended church here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Grigsby, of Bardstown, spent Sunday with the family of Mr. Cecil Grigsby.

Clifton Taylor has returned from Henderson, where he has been with the Bardstown cadet troops, of which he is a member. He reports a good time but lots of work as well.

In trying to solve Uno's question asked a short time ago, we sought information from one who we think knows the worth while and from "their" estimation we will venture this solution: "What is Hayworth" answer, (a man), a real ideal man. Is it correct Uno? We trust it is.

Our community is rejoicing over the result of the election. Three cheers for local option supporters. We believe too that officers in charge will enforce the law to the letter, and our county named for such a noble man will have a record in the future as stainless as his.

Mr. Leslie Semones, of Hardsburg, and Mr. James Semones, who is on a visit from New York, are visiting the families of W. H. Russell and H. B. Bonta this week.

"The Tatlers."

MOORESVILLE

Born, Friday August 24th. to the wife of Jas. Oder, twin girls.

Mr. Lee Godby and wife of Louisville, have returned to this place to make their future home

Several of our boys went over to Woodlawn last Sunday evening to see their best girls.

Protracted meeting commenced at New Hope Baptist church last Monday night.

Mr. Jeff Smith and wife, Mr. John Curtsinger and wife, Mrs. Lena Miller visited visited Mr. John Stoner and family last Saturday.

We had an awful storm last Sunday night. Lightning struck a barn of Mr. James Truax killing three hogs; a telephone pole was struck and the batteries in several telephone boxes were burned out. It was the heaviest rain that has fallen here for ten years.

Well the election is over and the local option forces gained a great victory. It is true they conducted the campaign in a more business like way than the whisky forces did, and there were several at these polls who voted opposite yes, that were for whisky. We now hope it is all over and that no malice may be borne one against the other.

Mrs. Mittie Daily and daughter, Miss. Alice and son, Willie, of Danville, are visiting Mr. Frank Carney and family.

Mrs. Joe Bishop, of Springfield, visited Mrs. James Wall, last Saturday.

Mr. Frank Carney and family, Mrs. Daily and daughter and son Mr. Owen Ellis and sister, Miss Nancye, Mr. George Moul and Nannie Reddicks visited James Hardesty and family last Sunday

Born, to the wife of Evan Carey, since our last writing, a boy and to the wife of Matt Rovalty who lives near Ashbrook twins, a girl and a boy.

Willie Coulter who has been sick for some time with typhoid fever we are sorry to say is not getting along very well.

Misses Effie Keeling and Ethel Satterly who have had malarial fever we are glad to report convalescent.

Mr. Isaac Johnson and family attended the fair last Thursday.

Mr. John Hangate and Miss Nannie Sweazey attended the camp meeting near Lebanon Sunday.

Hurrah for local option. Can we say that in this precinct? Well I should think so when there were 149 votes cast for local option and only 21 for whiskey. It seems that the Lord has been with us in this fight and we hope Nelson county will go dry next Saturday.

The Maccabees will give an ice cream supper at Sharpsville next Saturday night September 1. Everybody invited to attend.

Mr. J. S. Royalty and family were the guests of Mr. Levi Satterly and family Friday last.

Della and Nellie the two little daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Barkhead spent last Thursday with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Satterly.

Mr. Clarence Ashby and wife of Greens Chapel visited her brother, Mr. James Keeling and family Sunday.

Miss Ola Dennis and brother Cleo, of Pleasant Grove were the guests of the Misses Coulter Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Henry Wells and Miss Myrtle Robinson of Mooresville visited his parents Saturday night and Sunday.

Mr. Elisha White Jr., bought of Elisha White Sr., a farm for $2100.

If the saying be true, "More rain more rest" surely the lazy people will be pleased this year for we have been greatly blessed with plenty of rain.

Surgical Instruments.

A steel hypodermic needle is never inserted without having a permanent blue speck in the skin of the patient, probably because of the perhaps very small quantity of impurity, rust or otherwise which it contains. The gold needle invariably leaves no mark, whatever, says Leslie's Weekly. Appreciating these facts, efforts, in which surgeons particularly have been interested, have been made for years to contrive a process for hardening gold so that it could be used for the blades of the instruments of surgery of all kinds.

This is just what Dr. Vaughn has accomplished after eighteen years of experimenting and research. His method consists of the employment of heat and chemicals, but the tempering process does not make an alloy of the precious metal. Pure gold tempered by this process remains pure, but the surgical instruments which Dr. Vaughn is now manufacturing and which are beginning to be used extensively in hospitals and by practicing physicians and surgeons are of fourteen carat fineness, these being as efficient, but not as costly, as instruments of the purest grade of the metal.

Aside from its use in surgery, which is the feature of this new invention which appeals first, the perfection of Dr. Vaughn's process is of worldwide importance in many branches.

Farm Hands and Molasses.

The farm hands, a dozen brawny colored men, had washed at the pump and now sat patiently and quietly at the table. Soon their dinner appeared.

There was some kind of boiled pork —a long, low oblong of pure white fat, with just one thread of lean running through it, and there was pone, delicious pone made by the southern cook, and there were potatoes, coffee and black molasses.

The men put the black molasses on their fat pork. The farmer said:

"It is amazing how farm hands like molasses. I like it myself. The long, hard work in the sunny fields gives you an appetite that nothing satisfies as molasses will.

"I used to have an overseer who could no more have eaten his dinner without molasses than without a knife. He took on his plate meat, potatoes, corn, beans, and so on, and he would chop and mingle these things together, adding bits of bread besides, and lastly he would take the molasses jug and pour on about half a pint. That seems like a heavy and sickening dish for the hot noon of an August day, doesn't it? I tell you, though, it tastes good to a man who has been toiling in a blazing field since sunrise. I've tried it, and I know."

Why the Governor Vacated.

"I had been assigned to a room at a hotel in a small southern town," said the Grumbler, "and while making ready to go to bed I turned back the bed clothes and found the place already inhabited. They were there by the score, and I called up the landlord and pointed them out and asked:

"'Is this the sort of bed you expect a decent man to sleep in?'

"'By George, but that explains it!' he exclaimed, with a whistle of surprise.

"'It doesn't explain how I am going to get any sleep tonight.'

"'No, but it explains why the governor of our state, who was stopping here one night last week, got up after an hour and went out to finish the rest of the night in the barn. We all took it that he vacated on his wages, and I charged him four bits extra for disturbing the house, but I guess the old man was level headed, and I jumped on him too hard.'"

Feminine Way.

"I understand," said the parson, "that you and Mrs. Jenkins had the first incidence of your domestic clash last night. What was the subject of your discussion?"

"Really, I do not remember," answered the maid with the dimples, "but anyway the subject had nothing to do with what we talked about."—Detroit Tribune.

A Maker of Talk.

"Yes, Miss Gay is great at keeping the conversational ball rolling."

"Why, I didn't suppose she was a great talker."

"She isn't, but the things she does keep the other women talking."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Rural Luxury.

"Can't we put in a long distance telephone for you, Mr. Oatcake?" asked the solicitor.

"Well," replied the old farmer, "I dunno but what you might—that is, if I kin use it t' call up th' cows at milkin' time."

Dr. Latimer has been pastor of the church for three years and during that time he and his family have made many warm friends in Springfield who will regret to have them leave.

The following suckling colts, sired by Chestnut Dare, Mr. B. B Leachman's stallion, sold during the week of the Springfield fair: P. S. Barber sold one to W. S. Gibbs for $150. J. J. Yowell, of Bradfordsville, one to W. C. Rogers for $125. Ed Mitchell one to L. M. Gregory for $100 Goddard Grundy one to Judge Thurman for $100. John Gillispie one to B. B. Leachman for $100.

The following sales of farms are reported by McElroy & Wharton the real estate agents during the past week: W N. Deacon to James Curtsieger farm near Pulliam for $1,600 George Tucker sold his farm consisting of 130 acres located at Valley Hill to William E. Brown, of Marion county. Price $5,850. They also sold for William E. Brown, 124 acre farm in Marion county to A. L. Brown for $5,500

Mr. J. C. McElroy purchased yesterday that part of the St. Rose farm lying nearest to Springfield and containing about 300 acres, The price paid was $40 an acre. This is considered high class land for agricultural purposes and is very productive. It also contains some timber and some good land that has never been broken. The farm does not contain any houses or other improvements but is well fenced.

Postmaster Waters has received notification that an examination of applicants for rural route carriers will be held here on September 22 for the purpose of establishing an elegible list from which carriers may be appointed for any new routes or to fill any vacancy which may occur. Applications for examination must be filed before September 12. Rural rout no 5 out of Springfield will be established as soon as some requirements have been met. There are some road improvements to be made and a certain number of subscribers secured.

Squire L. T. Mobberly of Long Grove passed through this city Friday enroute home from a two weeks' visit to Washington and Marion counties. He reports the corn crop in these counties extremely good. While in Springfield he visited the old blacksmith shop where he partly learned the blacksmith trade 48 years ago. The Squire informs us that he met but few men he knew a half century ago in these counties and that time had worked such a wonderful change in the topography of the country that it was with difficulty that he recognized the lane of his birth —E'Town News.

Narrow Escape
(Valley Hill Cor. to News-Leader)

During the thunderstorm on last Sunday evening the lightning struck the meat house of Mr. George Tucker, into which he and wife had just entered, and had the stroke been more severe it would have killed them instantly, however the flash went through the top of the building from end to end and left the structure, doing no serious damage, other than sending Mr. and Mrs Tucker senseless for some moments. Thos. A. Grundy and T. C. Tatum also received a shock from the same volt, some 200 yds away.

Feeding Young Pigs.

For young pigs it is very necessary that milk be a part of the ration, says American Agriculturist. In connection with the milk ground barley, oats, corn or wheat can be fed to excellent advantage, starting with a small proportion at first and increasing this as the animals grow larger.

During the early summer a good pasture is of especial importance when raising hogs. Provide clover if possible and blue grass, for both are excellent hog feeds. A patch of rye furnishes excellent hog pasture. The hogs can be kept on this until the rye heads out. As soon as the grain is formed the animals will learn to pull it down and will consume the greater portion.

During the summer special care should be taken to provide shade for the animals during the hot weather. A cheap covering is all that is necessary. If the animals can have access to a brush lot so much the better, as this brush not only furnishes shade, but opportunity for rubbing, the latter being necessary for hogs to keep themselves clean.

Dairy Management.

The bureau of animal industry sent out circulars to 600 dairymen, making inquiries as to the management and production of their herds, says L. W. Lighty in National Stockman. Two hundred replied. Fifty of these kept no records, and a larger number of them did not know what it cost to feed their cows. This is really the greatest drawback in dairy work. The farmer keeps a lot of cows and does not know what it costs to feed them nor what they individually produce." Could we imagine a man in another business succeeding with such methods or a lack of any? A few of the fundamental business principles practically applied to our dairy work is the greatest desideratum of the day.

"WHAR'S MOSBY?"

When Rev. Len Penrod arose to preach, all whispering stopped. Every eye was bent upon him, and every ear was poised to catch the words that fell from his lips.

The sermon was just the kind of an address to stir the emotions, especially those of a trusting, unlettered people. He discussed no doctrinal points. He used no circumlocution. He struck out in short, crisp sentences that went direct to the understanding of the simplest intellect.

It soon became evident he was reaching the simple hearts of this emotional people. In fact, the most cultured audience could not have sat unmoved by his thrilling appeals.

A number of rough men I noticed were smashing tears with the balls of their thumbs. Scores of women had their faces in their aprons and were weeping audibly.

Soon a young woman about eighteen, of beautiful face and figure, sprang out into the center of the floor and, setting her large, dark eyes on the roof, gave a startling scream. The people all turned their faces toward her and encouraged her with shouts of "Amen!" and "Bless God!"

She first moved about in a slow, graceful circle. Then faster and faster she went until directly she leaped high from the floor, smote her beautiful hands together and shouted, "Glory, glory, glory!" Then around and around she whirled, almost as fast as a top, clapping her hands all the while and shouting, "Glory, glory, glory!" There was a rapt expression on her beautiful countenance as if she viewed through the veil of sense a face in paradise.

Finally she halted and stood still for a moment, her arms elevated and outstretched and the seraphic expression still fixed on her face. Then with a wild shriek she started for the door.

"Whar's Mosby?" was chorused aloud by many throats.

At that instant the crowd toward the door parted, and in stepped a tall, handsome, fine built man of about forty years, with iron gray hair and mustache.

He stepped toward the half frenzied girl, took her in his arms and eased her down to a bench. He sat down by her side, and her head fell over on her shoulder. In that position she lay, seemingly unconscious, until the sermon was through.

There was no more notice taken of her by the congregation. When the meeting was over the man stroked her forehead several times with a tender palm and spoke to her in a low voice for a moment, when she aroused herself and fixed for starting home.

As soon as we were a short distance away I inquired of my old friend I had accompanied the meaning of this novel proceeding and the cry of "Whar's Mosby?"

"That has been a cry familiar in church here for twenty-five years," he said.

"It was a cry long afore the girl was born. Her mother many years ago was just like her—a pirty, fine lookin' gal, mighty religious an' fond of shoutin'. She, the mother, was in love with Mosby; never cared for no one else.

"When she would take them shoutin' tanterims like the gal took today an' was about to take what we call the jerks it was found that Mosby was the only person thet could stop her and keep the jerks off. Every meetin' she'd take a spell, an' the shout would go up as it did today, 'Whar's Mosby?'

"The mother, of course, wanted to marry Mosby, but her father put in a big objection, sayin' that no man who never owned a coon dog or a still could have a gal of his. Mosby an' the gal persisted, an' finally the ole man shot at him an' drove him outen the country.

"Soon arter that the ole man, arter forcin' the gal to marry Lon Peterson, his partner in the moonshine business, turned up his ole trotters, gaped a time or two an' died.

"In the course of time Mosby come back. His ole sweetheart he'd saved from the jerks so often was married an' had a little gal baby—the one that shouted today.

"Waal, soon arter he come home he went to church one day, an' his ole flame wuz thar an' would, of course, shout. People wuz all eager to know what would be the outcome.

"Soon arter the preacher begun Mrs. Peterson got in. She kep' on an' on an' on, an' folks got uneasy. Her husband worked with her, but he didn't have no infloocence at all with her. Her eyes got glassy and skearry lookin' at last, an' then all the people shouted:

"'Whar's Mosby?'

"Mosby come forward, mighty timid, an' took holt. She jist melted down in his arms, an' he eased her to the bench. Her head fell over on his shoulder an' then rolled off like a ball. It kep' rollin' off an' rollin' off 'till finally we got uneasy. Waal, some one placed her poor head back again an' looked in her eyes. She wuz dead!

"The gal is jist like her mother in everything. As soon as she wuz old enough to git religion she begun to shout like her poor mother, an' it wuz soon found, like her poor mother, it took Mosby to save 'her from the jerks.

"Her an' Mosby will be married next Sunday, an', mark my words, when the preacher starts up, arter the ceremony, an' goes to preachin', you'll see the same capers as you did outen her today, an' the same ole cry will swell up:

"'Whar's Mosby?'"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

DIFFERENT SOLUTIONS.

Progressive Conundrum That Could Be Worked Out Two Ways.

"Miss Gracie," he said, with an engaging smile, "did you ever try your hand at one of these progressive conundrums?"

"What are progressive conundrums, Mr. Spoonamore?" inquired the young lady.

"Haven't you heard of them? Here is one: Why is a ball of yarn like the letter 't'? Because a ball of yarn is circular, a circular is a sheet, a sheet is a flat, a flat is $50 a month, $50 a month is dear, a deer is swift, a swift is a swallow, a swallow is a taste, a taste is an inclination, an inclination is an angle, an angle is a point, a point is an object aimed at, an object aimed at is a target, a target is a mark, a mark is an impression, an impression is a stamp, a stamp is a thing stuck on, a thing stuck on is a young man in love, and a young man in love is like the letter 't' because he stands before 'u,' Miss Gracie."

"I don't think you have the answer quite right," said the young lady.

"A ball of yarn is round, a round is a stock, a stake is a wooden thing, a wooden thing is a young man in love, and a young man in love is like the letter 't' because, Mr. Spoonamore—and she spoke clearly and distinctly—"because he is often crossed."

The young man understood. He took his hat and his progressive conundrums and vanished from Miss Gracie Garlinghouse's alphabet forever.—Pearson's

THE ANCIENT INCAS.

They Knew Neither Idleness Nor Riches Nor Poverty.

The flocks of llamas belonged to the sun and the Inca. It was death to kill one. At certain seasons of the year they were collected from the hills and shorn. Large numbers were sent to supply food for the court and to be used at the religious festivals and sacrifices. Male llamas only were killed. The wool belonged to the Inca and was stored in the government depositories and dealt out according as the people's wants required. In this way they were provided with warm clothing. When they had worked up enough wool into clothing for themselves they were then employed in working up material for the Inca. The distribution of the wool and superintendence of its manufacture were in the hands of officers appointed for the purpose. No one was allowed to be idle. Idleness was a crime and was severely punished.

All the mines belonged to the Inca and were worked for his benefit. The various employments were usually in the hands of a few and became hereditary. What the father was, that the son became. A great part of the agricultural products was stored in granaries scattered up and down the country and was dealt out to the people as required. It will thus be seen that there was no chance for a man to become rich, neither could he become poor. The spirit of speculation had no existence there.—Chambers' Journal.

THE BLACK BALL.

A Clever Scheme That Was Spoiled In the Drawing.

Two young men in a French village were called on to draw for conscription. One only was wanted to complete the number, and of the two who were to draw one was the son of a rich farmer and the other the child of a poor widow.

The farmer ingratiated himself with the superintendent of the ballot and promised him a present if he could find means to prevent his son from going in the army. In order to accomplish this the official put into the urn two black balls instead of one white and one black ball. When the young men came, he said:

"There are two balls, one black and one white, in the urn. He who draws the black one must serve. Your turn is first," pointing to the widow's son.

The latter, suspecting that all was not fair, approached the urn and drew one of the balls, which he immediately swallowed without looking at it.

"Why," said the superintendent, "have you done that? How are we to know whether you have drawn a black or a white ball?"

"Oh, that's very easy to discover," was the reply. "Let the other now draw. If I have the black, he must necessarily draw the white one."

There was no help for it, and the farmer's son, putting his hand into the urn, drew the remaining ball, which, to the satisfaction of the spectators, was a black one.

"DO IT TO-DAY!"

"And to think that ten months ago I looked like this! I owe it to German Syrup."

¶The time-worn injunction, "Never put off 'til to-morrow what you can do today," is now generally presented in this form: "Do it to-day!" That is the terse advice we want to give you about that hacking cough or demoralizing cold with which you have been struggling for several days, perhaps weeks. ¶Take some reliable remedy for it TO-DAY—and let that remedy be Dr. Boschee's German Syrup, which has been in use for over thirty-five years. A few doses of it will undoubtedly relieve your cough or cold, and its continued use for a few days will cure you completely. ¶No matter how deep-seated your cough, even if dread consumption has attacked your lungs, German Syrup will surely effect a cure—as it has done before in thousands of apparently hopeless cases of lung trouble. ¶New trial bottles, 25c; regular size, 75c. PEOPLE OF THE DAY

Littlefield of Maine.

It is understood that President Samuel Gompers and other trades unionists will wage an active campaign in the Second Maine congressional district against Congressman Charles E. Littlefield, who is a candidate for reelection. Mr. Littlefield is upon the blacklist of the American Federation of Labor because of his opposition as a member of the judiciary committee to the anti-injunction bill.

As the congressional elections in Maine are held in September, the result of the attempt to defeat Mr. Littlefield will be awaited with unusual interest, especially by other members of congress who are candidates for reelection and who have, like the member from Maine, opposed the interests of labor in congress.

The normal Republican majority in the Second Maine district is about 5,000, and as the district is not counted as strong from a union labor standpoint the first fight of the year may be considered a rather hard one for the American Federation of Labor.

Mr. Littlefield is a native of the Pine Tree State, a lawyer by profession and is fifty-five years old. He was elected to the Fifty-sixth congress to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Nelson Dingley and is now serving his fourth term.

He Could Trust Her.

Of young Marshall Field, now sometimes called the richest child in the world, this story was recently told at Lakewood:

The boy, according to the story, approached an old woman in a hotel and said to her:

"Can you crack nuts?"

"No, my dear, I can't," the old woman replied. "I lost all my teeth years ago."

"Then," said the little boy, extending two hands full of walnuts, "please hold these while I go and get some more."

The Wrong Party.

Mayor McClellan of New York has a butler in his Washington square house who wears knee breeches and the rest of a real butler's outfit on ceremonial occasions. The mayor invited some Tammany leaders over to his house one evening to dinner. One of them came early and was admitted by the stately butler. The leader drew McClellan aside as soon as he had reached him and whispered hoarsely, "Say, George, why didn't you tell me this was a masquerade party?"—Saturday Evening Post.

World's Richest Woman.

Mrs. Russell Sage, by the inheritance of practically all of her late husband's vast fortune, becomes probably the richest woman in the world. The estate of the late Russell Sage is variously estimated at from $80,000,000 upward. At the lowest estimate Mrs. Sage becomes sole possessor of $75,000,000, which puts her in the first rank of the rich persons of the world. She is considerably in advance of Mrs. Hetty Green as a controller of vast sums of money. It was said by a friend of the family that "in leaving his fortune to Mrs. Sage Mr. Sage has practically left it all to charity. How could a woman of her advanced years spend a thousandth part of it? What could she do but give it away? Mr. Sage knew that his wife had made a study of philanthropy and that she would distribute his money wisely."

MRS. RUSSELL SAGE.

Margaret Olivia Slocum Sage was born in Syracuse in 1828 and was married to Russell Sage in 1869. She was educated at the Troy Female seminary. Mrs. Sage has made a study of domestic science and domestic help, and for many years was interested in the training of poor girls to be skilled cooks, housekeepers and dressmakers. She has served as president of the Emma Willard association and of the Pascal Institute, the latter a free trade school for girls.

ARRESTING OLD AGE.

Modern Life and the Lengthening Period of Youth.

It may seem strange to us, though the fact nevertheless remains, that the veterans of the grand army of Napoleon, weighed down by age and glory, were men of whom few had passed their thirty-fifth year. It was a time of rash and short living, with an early age and no overtures of "real youth"—a time when we find Thackeray ridiculing Du Florac for holding claims on being still a young man at the age of thirty-five! The unmistakable tendency of our time to rejuvenate life and to prolong or, rather, to vanquish age is placing its stamp on every event of individual existence. The average man today carries the spirit and power of youth into an age which a century ago was regarded as bordering on the shady side of existence. The buoyancy and vigor characteristic of our present middle aged man make it in most cases extremely difficult to approach any fair degree of accuracy in determining the age of a person passing along the ascending scale between forty and fifty-five. And what is said of man refers, of course, in equal if not in still more accentuated degree to woman. One of the causes of this remarkable arrest of old age lies undoubtedly in the increasing indulgence of our time in healthy outdoor sports, with their care free and worry free abandon. The occasional freeing of the mind from the "strenuous life," the determination for a longer or shorter time to force business and routine interests to the wall and give up oneself without scruple or narrow minded conventional restraint to the spirit of the sport, undoubtedly tends to liberate forces of original pristine strength.—Dr. A. E. Gibson in Medical Brief.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, uric acid, catarrh of the bladder and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work and in private practice, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all good druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

A FAMOUS DANCER.

Sir Christopher Hatton Won Royal Honors by His Grace.

In Queen Bess' time Sir Christopher Hatton won his way to the lord chancellorship by his ability or agility in terpsichorean lines. He first attracted the notice of Queen Elizabeth by his graceful dancing in a mask at court. He henceforth became a reigning favorite, and his promotion was rapid.

He was successively made a gentleman of the queen's privy chamber, captain of the board of gentlemen pensioners (the bodyguard), vice chamberlain and a member of the privy council. This delight of the queen to honor him caused much envy. Complaints were uttered that under the existing government nothing could be obtained by any others than "dancers and carpet knights, such as the Earl of Lincoln and Master Hatton." On the death of Lord Chancellor Bromley the queen offered Hatton the great seal. Even while chancellor Sir Christopher exhibited his skill in dancing. Attending the marriage of his nephew and heir with a judge's daughter, he was decked, according to the custom of the age, in his official robes, and when the music struck up he doffed them, threw them down on the floor and, saying, "Lie there, Mr. Chancellor!" danced the measures of the nuptial festivity.—St. James' Gazette.

A Tongue Twister.

Try it yourself, very slowly and carefully until you can say it easily; then pass it along to your friends. Here it is:

"She stood at the gate, welcoming him in."

Ten to one a person trying to pronounce the sentence for the first time will fumble it laughably. Tongue twisting sentences, however, are good elocutionary exercises. They give you control of your vocal organs so that you can enunciate properly, just as finger exercises on the piano or organ give control of the fingers. What an immense amount of mechanical practice does it require to establish anything like a close sympathy between the brain and the physical organs!

Elasticity of Spiders' Webs.

Did you ever watch a spider's web on a windy day? If so, you will notice how wonderfully it accommodates itself to the swaying of the twigs to which it is attached. It is in fact elastic of the very finest quality. Were it not for its elasticity the poor spider would not long survive. The first breeze would rend the silken meshes of the web to atoms and the owner's stock of new material would very soon be exhausted in repairs and renewals. Besides its elasticity, the spider's web is very sticky, a property which accounts for the ease wherewith it holds insects when once caught.

Very Polite.

The politest man has been discovered. He was hurrying along the street the other night when another man, also in violent haste, rushed out of a doorway, and the two collided with great force.

The second man looked mad, while the polite man, taking off his hat, said:

"My dear sir, I don't know which of us is to blame for this violent encounter, but I am in too great a hurry to investigate. If I ran into you, I beg your pardon; if you ran into me, don't mention it."

And he tore away with redoubled speed.—Chicago Journal.

The SPORTING WORLD

The New Golf Champion.

Eben M. Byers of Pittsburg created a great sensation at Englewood, N. J., recently by his defeat of George S. Lyon of Toronto, Canada, in the finals for the national amateur golf championship.

The styles of the players who contested in the finals vary considerably. Byers has a slow, easy swing, with a deliberate though perfect follow through, his play with the wooden clubs being ease itself. He is a clean cut player and puts up a deadly short game, getting almost uniformly good results with his irons and putting with great accuracy.

Lyon has great strength and puts a lot of it in his wooden club shots, driving an astonishingly long ball, usually straight down the middle.

His work with the irons also is clean cut, and few excel him in judging distances in midiron or mashie shots.

Byers was formerly champion of Yale university.

Adam, Noted French Stallion.

Attracting the attention of many of the best known millionaire breeders now in this vicinity, the imported four-year-old French thoroughbred stallion Adam was the center of interest in the paddock of the Coney Island Jockey club at Sheepshead Bay, N. Y., recently, when for the sum of $75,000 this son of the renowned Flying Fox was sold by the noted French turfman, Edmond Blanc, to Francis C. Bishop of Mount Kisco, N. Y.

Adam is a rich chestnut of fine proportions with apparently good legs and feet and might be put in training almost at once if such is the intention of Mr. Bishop. He was purchased, however, to be placed at the head of Mr. Bishop's stock farm at Mount Kisco, but in the dearth of good horses on our turf at present Mr. Bishop may conclude to race Adam unless the horse should develop some unexpected weakness.

Adam is one of five stallions, sons of Flying Fox, which have been sold within the last year for more than half a million dollars.

THE BLUEBEARD STORY.

It Has a Mythical Rather Than a Mythological Origin.

The fascinating story of Bluebeard has a mythical rather than a mythological origin. No one has found his prototype in the Vedas or in the old Greek or Roman authors. The story is supposed to be of French origin, and it has even been suggested that Bluebeard was no other than the much married Henry VIII. There is, however, better reason for believing that the original was Giles de Laval, lord of Riaz, who was marshal of France early in the fifteenth century. He was a brave soldier whose exploits in the wars between England and France are recorded in history. According to Mezeray, he murdered his wives as soon as he tired of them, and was himself eventually strangled in 1440.

The story of Laval has, however, not many points of résemblance, for there is no mention of a key, and Giles de Laval, moreover, used to entice persons of both sexes to his castle for the sake of their blood, which he wanted for certain incantations he indulged in. Nor, indeed, does the story fit in with our own Henry VIII., and we are left to believe that, whatever the origin, the key and Sister Ann were added for the sake of effect. A variant of the story of Giles de Laval is told by Holinshed, in whose version the name is Giles de Retz, Marquis de Laval, who lived in Brittany, and was strangled and burned for the murder of his seven wives. Dr. C. Taylor, it may be added, regarded the story simply as fiction, a satire on or type of the castle lords of the days of knight errantry.—London Globe.

OAK AND PINE.

The Value and Usefulness of These Classes of Woods.

Though generally assumed that oak is the wood capable of being put to the greatest variety of uses, it is known, as a matter of fact, that the pine is really the most used, on account of its great abundance. Nevertheless, the timber of the oak combines in itself the essential elements of strength and durability, hardness and elasticity in a degree which no other tree can boast, unrivaled as a material of shipbuilding, also superior in architecture, cabinetmaking, carving, mill work, cooperage and innumerable other purposes, while the bark is of great value as furnishing tan and yielding a bitter extract in continual demand for medicinal purposes.

But of uses for the pine details would be well nigh endless. The timber is invaluable in houses and ship carpentry; common turpentine is extracted from it in vast quantities and immense supplies of tar, pitch, resin and lampblack. In the manufacture of matches, and, above all, paper pulp, thousands and tens of thousands of acres of pine forests are cut down every year, and, briefly, the timber of this tree, constituting as it does the chief material of English and American builders, may be said to be more used than all other kinds of wood put together.

Tried the Effect of a Title.

Among the neighbors who annoyed Carlyle none perhaps gave him so much trouble as the boys who played about near his house. They made no secret of their dislike of the philosopher and stood in dread of his stick when he went abroad. James Waylen, who did a great part of the research for the "Cromwell," and who was at Carlyle's house almost daily, was one morning standing on the doorstep of the house in Cheyne row waiting to be let in when one of these young urchins came up to him in a deferential manner, and, touching his cap, said: "Please, sir, would you ask Lord Carlyle to give me my top? It's tumbled down his airey." During the morning's work Carlyle and Waylen chuckled together over the conciliatory title which the lad had created for his enemy.

An Uncanny Plant.

On the shores of Lake Nicaragua is to be found an uncanny product of the vegetable kingdom known among the natives by the expressive name of "the devil's noose." Dunstan, the naturalist, discovered it while wandering on the shores of the lake. Attracted by cries of pain and terror from his dog he found the animal held by black, sticky bands, which had chafed the skin to bleeding point. These bands were branches of a newly discovered carnivorous plant, which has been aptly named the "land octopus." The branches are flexible, black, polished, without leaves, and secrete a viscid fluid.

Where Total Eclipses Are Rare.

It is a fact well known to astronomers that the average number of total and partial eclipses in any one year is four; that the maximum is seven and the minimum two. Where only two occur they are always both of the sun. There are a great many more eclipses of the sun in the course of a year or a hundred years than there are of the moon. This fact notwithstanding, however, London, the metropolis of the world, seems to be a place where such obstructions to the sun's light seldom occur.

A Better Match.

Briggs—That was a narrow escape Bildergate had, wasn't it? You know he was just about to marry a girl when he found that she spent $2,500 a year on her dresses. Griggs—Yes, but he's married all the same. Briggs—True, but he didn't marry that girl. Griggs—He didn't! Who did he marry, then? Briggs—Her dressmaker.—London Mail.

A carefully greased needle will float upon water, though, of course, the steel is much heavier than a similar bulk of water.

Last of the Sailing Craft.

"It seems to me," remarked the retired sea captain, "that such boats as those"—he nodded at a fishing schooner as he spoke that was coming up the bay wing and wing—"are the only craft left nowadays that don't have 'kickers' in them or use steam power in some way. Of course canal boats use steam nowadays, every clam sloop coming up from the Jersey coast has a naphtha engine in her, all the fishermen along our coast who just go out a day at a time depend on naphtha to get back to market, and all the city chaps who used to have sailboats have given them up for power boats. Every big ship of any size at all uses donkey engines to get up sail and anchor, and so the old original American schooner seems to be the only one left that sticks to sails alone. I wonder how long it will be before these fishing craft will go the same road. When they do one of the most picturesque things known to man will have passed out of existence, I tell you."

Trains That Never Change.

The modern traveling man who carries always the latest time schedules in his coat pocket and grumbles because the Pathfinder is published only once a month may find it difficult to believe that certain fundamental trains have been going in and out of Boston at the same hour on the same service and making the same stops for threescore years. Nevertheless such is the case. In fact, Massachusetts folks rather resent a change in time tables. The story is told of one Massachusetts rural town in the old days that, when it was proposed to put on more trains to Boston, the inhabitants objected because they said it would be a task to remember the times of so many trains.

Working For the Tribe.

Portuguese South Africa furnishes an excellent example of "collectivism" as it works out in a primitive society. Every year the chiefs of the tribes send a band of their young men to the Transvaal to earn the hut tax for the whole tribe. By this arrangement the majority of the tribe lives in ease, while a small portion of their number work underground for perhaps nine months, at the end of which time they return home and surrender 80 or 90 per cent of their earnings to the chief for the use of the tribe.

Overdoing the Holiday.

The modern craze for speed and hustle has invaded our holiday making to such an extent that in many people's minds a tour means really a scamper, or, more properly speaking, a scurry, in which the object is neither mental nor bodily refreshment, but merely a frantic effort to cover the greatest possible amount of ground in the least possible amount of time. This perverted view of holiday making does an immense amount of harm every year, especially to delicate people, and many a breakdown results.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol cures indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does not only cure indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy cures all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Mr. S. S. Ball, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says:—"I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in milk for baby."
